The best dining experiences are emotional, they are about places, people and history. Moments that find friends and family gathered together sharing old stories. The food is real, fresh from the farm and prepared with all the love of your grandmothers kitchen.

As a chef, I have been on a never ending food journey, cooked in almost 100 countries and traveled to most every state in the USA! But something was amiss, I wanted a home, I needed to be closer to the food , to be in control of what I was cooking. So the journey begins anew, I moved to the Hampton's!

Almost daily I wander local farms & markets, my pocket filled with a little black book and ringing cell phone. It's when I forge new relationships & strengthen those with old friends. This very special group is our family of local food artisans. Their passion brings life to my kitchen every day. They are the growers, foragers & makers who curate my world of "east end" edibles.

Now begins the rest of the story... Carolyn Stee 'crusader of worthwhile causes'
